The Soap&Skin

Text: Eva Hobbinger, Fotos: Kerin Smajin, Styling Sarah Zakal-Brosch

"When I was a child, I toyed with dirt. I killed the slugs. I bored with a bough in their spiracle." For almost 10 years, the exceptional Austrian artist SOAP&SKIN has been singing about death and pain, about nature and healing. Her voice pierces into us and cuts off our air, only to let us breathe better afterwards. The lyrics to SPRACLE read differently when you know that 30-year-old ANJA PLASCHG grew up on a pig-fattening farm in a Styrian village with 200 inhabitants. A conversation about SUGAR-CUBE WITCHES, talking trees, and how impressive and depressing rural life can be.

A dress in a Bavarian and Austrian traditional area, which was only invented at the end of the NINETEENTH CENTURY. Yet today it is still likely seen as a typical Alpine costume - but just in the minds of urban surrealists. It was created by the Nazi and is still popular among right-wingers to demonstrate a sense of belonging to the neo-Nazi.
